MARATHA OBC STATUS OPPOSED BY SENIOR LEADERS OF RULING PARTY

AV Team

The rally, organised by OBC organisations of all castes and communities, aims to oppose the demand to give Kunbi (OBC) status to Marathas. Marathas are considered to be the upper calls community and they don't want to be categorised as other backward classes. The venue chosen of today's OBC rally is approximately 20 kilometers away from Maratha activist Manoj Jarange-Patil's home in Antarwali-Sarati, where he had staged a fast unto death demanding Kunbi status for Marathas. Some think tanks believe that the rally was to demoralise the agitating Marathas. This agitation has put Maharashtra government in awkward position, just to counter then the ruling party members are denouncing the Kunbi status.

BJP leader and former MLA Dr. Ashish Deshmukh told Afternoon Voice, "Giving out reservation directly could be a problematic issue and this case is ongoing in the court for which we have to wait for it. Most importantly activist Manoj Jarange Patil who is protesting for Maratha reservation has got huge support for this in Maharashtra which was not possible all alone and he is being supported by NCP Chief Sharad Pawar".

President of Rashtriya Samaj Paksha Mahadev Jankar said, "According to me OBC community and 'Maratha' should be given reservation separately. He further stated that "When it comes to reservation as OBC community has faced a lot of injustice and discrimination in terms of everything and this is why there should be a special reservation for OBC and we are not against 'Maratha Reservation'".

Shabbir Ansari, President of the All India Muslim OBC organisation said, "I am fighting for the rights of OBC community for a very long period of time and 'Maratha' or 'Kunbi' never demanded for anything earlier but activist Manoj Jarange Patil has created a terror and made a huge issue on the reservation and all the Maratha's should be one and come together but people are coming from different communities so the activist should understand also it is not possible constitutionally to give out reservation for a community. It also seems there is strong backing by some of the political party over this issue also leaders of the state government are giving different statement which also showcases that there is huge conflict going on in their alliance".

In March 2006, a partly decomposed body was found in the high-security zone of Raj Bhavan. This was semi-nude body of a youngster. There were huge slums in the adjoining areas which also add to the security concerns for the police. While watering the plants mali (gardener) noticed this body and informed the constable on duty at Raj Bhavan. Morning around 8 am on March 6, 2006, when State Reserve Police Constable Sarjerao Patil called Constable Dattatraya Lad, who was on duty at the lower gate of Raj Bhavan and showed him a "bundle-like" object in the sea. It was a body with an 'OM' tattoo on its head. The police retrieved the body and a complaint was registered. The body was mutilated and enfolded in a blood-stained bed sheet and plastic paper. The body was identified and the police had the names of the suspects but the accused could not be traced. With the probe hitting a dead end, the case turned cold – until a tip-off 13 years later.

The Malabar Hill police then went through the missing persons' list in those days. They were trying to seek all the information from other police stations along Mumbai's coast to identify the victim.

During the initial probe, Ransingh's brothers-in-law said they suspected Satpal alias Chhanga Valmiki and his brothers, leading the police to visit their native places.

A special team of officials were immediately posted. They arrested Satpal from Krishna Colony in Faridabad and he gave them co-accused Tejpal alias Babaji's address in Malviya Nagar, Delhi.

Tejpal and Satpal not only killed Ransingh but chopped and dumped his body in the sea and fled Mumbai. After this murder the accused went on hibernating, for a few years police tried their level best to trace these two people but they were not traceable.

They also released details of the body and a photograph in the media. Media published the news in local newspapers and soon after two men came up to the police and identified the body as that of their brother-in-law Ransingh alias Karan Singh Valmiki. The persons who approached the police station were his relatives. Police started probing the relatives and friends.

During the initial probe, Ransingh's brothers-in-law said they suspected Satpal alias Chhanga Valmiki and his brothers, leading the police to visit their native places. However, they failed to locate the accused, and with no further leads coming up, after three years of investigation the police filed a closure report. The magistrate accepted the report and the case got buried in the files. See how sometimes we shut something and the solution comes up randomly. Thirteen years later, in October 2019, the police were issuing non-bailable warrants and summoning known criminals to detain or extern them ahead of the Assembly elections when they got a lead that the accused in the 2006 case had become overoptimistic, were regularly visiting their native places and that one of them had arrived in Faridabad, Haryana with his wife.

A special team of officials were immediately posted. They arrested Satpal from Krishna Colony in Faridabad and he gave them co-accused Tejpal alias Babaji's address in Malviya Nagar, Delhi. The duo was booked on charges of murder, common intention and destruction of evidence under the Indian Penal Code. During the investigation, the police came to know that there was a fight between the deceased, Satpal, Tejpal and their three brothers, who were staying in Mumbai, as they refused to return the money he had lent them. Satpal was financially well-off and others just arrived in Mumbai to make their living. Ransingh who took money from Satpal was impolite. In result Satpal lost his calm and killed Ransingh.

Tejpal and Satpal not only killed Ransingh but chopped and dumped his body in the sea and fled Mumbai. After this murder the accused went on hibernating, for a few years police tried their level best to trace these two people but they were not traceable. When the case got closed, they both became careless and started visiting their village frequently. That's how police got the lead and both the accused are arrested and kept in Mumbai jail.

From Malbar hill to Cuffe Parade there is a huge slum, these slums are spread over 28 acres with more than 70,000 residents staying here. Most of them are from north India. These huts are on encroached lands. These poor slum dwellers stay in one of the plush localities of Mumbai which is Malbar hill. They might be staying in poor living conditions for many years but the SRA projects offered them better living conditions. Daily fights, conflicts and illegal activities are common here. Marginal population is of Maharashtrians but most of the other population is from other states of India. Most of the criminal cases no untraced because the accused flees to their native. This over populated slum is den of criminal activities and challenges Mumbai police.

Black marketing of WC tickets deprived genuine cricket fans the opportunity to watch the game at the stadiums!

Black marketing of world cup tickets for the knockout stage games deprived genuine fans an opportunity to watch the game at the stadium. Touts were selling tickets at 10 times the actual price & the minimum price at which one could get the tickets were upwards of 25K which was ridiculous. It was a money minting opportunity for many who cornered tickets in bulk & made a booty by selling them at exorbitant prices.

ICC should see to it that WC tickets are sold to genuine cricket lovers like they do in FIFA games where tickets are sold to genuine spectators through auction & only those allotted are allowed entry to the stadiums. There is no resale policy & one has to return the tickets to FIFA if one cannot make it to the stadiums for any reason.

As the matter was heard at the Bombay High Court of 'Maratha reservation along with Muslim reservation' so it had ruled that 'Marathas' won't be given reservation and Muslims backwardness for education can be considered".

minister Chhagan Bhujbal from the Ajit Pawar group in the NCP, Congress' Vijay Wadettiwar, who is the leader of the Opposition in Maharashtra, BJP's former MLA Ashish Deshmukh, and former minister and Dhanger community leader Mahadev Jankar.

They announced that no glorification of any political leader would be allowed, emphasising that speakers should focus on comments related to OBCs and the issue of reservation, rather than engaging in political speeches.

TikTok that allows users to share videos, takes action against posts pertaining to Osama bin Laden's "Letter to America"

Social networking site TikTok that allows users to share videos, has taken action against posts pertaining to Osama bin Laden's "Letter to America," which was written by the commander of al Qaeda following the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, CBS News reported. Bin Laden tried to defend the roughly 3,000-person terror assaults against the United States in a long letter dated 2002.

The head of al-Qaeda condemned US military installations in the Middle East as well as US backing for Israel in the letter. It was this week that the letter written by bin Laden surfaced on social media, with many TikTok users posting about how the letter changed their perspective on the 9/11 terror attacks and the US foreign policy altogether, CBS News reported. As of Thursday afternoon, the #lettertoamerica hashtag on TikTok had received 13.7 million views, despite the platform stating that reports of it trending were false.

"Content promoting this letter clearly violates our rules on supporting any form of terrorism. We are proactively and aggressively removing this content and investigating how it got onto our platform," TikTok said in a statement on Thursday. "The number of videos on TikTok is small and reports of it trending on our platform are inaccurate. This is not unique to TikTok and has appeared across multiple platforms and the media," it added. In the letter circulating on social media platforms, other than just X, Bin Laden claimed that "whoever has killed our civilians, then we have the right to kill theirs."

He criticised the US for exploiting the "treasures" of the region, which he referred to natural resources, and asserted that America understands just one language: violence. ANI

According to People magazine, the allegation was made on Unwine with Tasha K by Brother Bilal, who claimed that years ago he walked in on Smith, 55, and Martin having sex. (Cardi B previously won a defamation lawsuit against the YouTuber LaTasha Kebe, aka Tasha K.) On Will's reaction to Brother Bilal's claim, Jada said her husband is "always gonna find the funny," adding that she and Will "laughed about it." "You have to because it's absolutely ridiculous, you know what I'm saying. So all you have is, you just gotta laugh about it. And it's unfortunate," she said. "He was like, 'Do you believe this s---?' " she said. "But we just laughed about it."

Jada said Brother Bilal "tried a shakedown, a money shakedown, that didn't work. We're gonna take legal action. Because it's one thing to have your opinion about somebody, versus just making up salacious, malicious stories. So that's actionable. So we gon' roll with that." ANI
